

Flexible Working & Work Life Balance Policy

Introduction

This policy of Trowbridge Town Council (the 'Council') covers Flexible Working & Work Life Balance.

Work Life Balance

1. The Council understands and embraces the principles of work life balance where it is practical and beneficial to do so.
2. The Council will ensure work life balance considerations are developed regularly into its operating systems.
3. The Council recognises that members and staff, including volunteers have responsibilities and interests inside and outside of the work of the Council and both will mutually benefit from promoting work life balance.
4. The Council acknowledges that with appropriate use of flexibility in the way it manages its work through its meetings, managers and systems, that there will be a marked improvement in the effectiveness of the Council's services, while at the same time maintaining standards, improving the quality of life for all its members and staff including volunteers.
5. The Council will support through its managers the achievement of individuals' work life balance and the improvement of the effectiveness of the Council.

Flexible Working

Under provisions set out in the Employment Rights Act 1996 and regulations made under it, all employees have a statutory right to ask their employer for a change to their contractual terms and conditions of employment to work flexibly provided they have worked for their employer for 26 weeks continuously at the date the application is made. As a good employer, Trowbridge Town Council has always had a positive view of flexible working. This statement sets out the framework in which flexible working will be managed within the Council.

Eligibility

The right to request flexible working is available to employees who have a minimum of 26 weeks' continuous service. Only one flexible working request can be made within a twelve month period. The legislation does not provide an automatic right to flexible working. There is an emphasis on the importance of both the employee and the employer considering the terms of the request and attempting to reach an outcome that suits both parties. The employee has a responsibility to think carefully about their desired working pattern when making an application, and the manager is required to follow a specific procedure to ensure requests are considered objectively.

What is Flexible Working?

Flexible working can mean a change to the number of hours worked, the times worked or the place of work. Some examples of flexible working are:

- Part-time working;
- Job share;
- Flexible working hours (the organisation has a detailed policy);
- Term time only working;
- Occasional or part-time working from home, (see additional guidance on home working);
- Compressed hours.

How to apply

Anyone considering flexible working must first discuss with their manager the reasons for the request to change their working pattern. Not all roles within the council may be suitable for all types of flexible working, and it would be appropriate for the employee to discuss this with their line manager in the first instance.

A formal application must be made in writing to their Line Manager. It should set out clearly:

- The desired change in working pattern;
- How it will impact upon the work of the Council;
- How the employee will manage their work to ensure there is no loss in efficiency;
- The impact of the change of the work pattern on the employee's colleagues;
- How any potential problems will be overcome; and
- When the employee wishes to start the new way of working.

If the flexible working request involves working from home, the employee should also complete the application form and risk assessment form attached (Appendix 1) and submit these to their Line Manager. Employees are encouraged to complete the form electronically providing as much information as possible.

All electronic copies must be saved to personal drives to ensure the information remains confidential.

The line manager will present the application to Head of Service for Resources and Venues. (HOR) for it to be considered fully.

Who makes the decision?

The HOR will consider all applications and consult the appropriate manager as required. The Council will notify employees of the decision as soon as possible. If an application is approved, the working arrangement may be implemented on a trial basis for an initial period of 6 months if necessary. If an application is refused, the individual will be notified in writing with reasons why the request cannot be accommodated. The grounds for refusing a request include:

- Additional burden of costs;
- Inability to reorganise work among other staff;
- Inability to recruit additional staff;
- Detrimental impact on quality
- Detrimental effect on customer service;
- Detrimental impact on performance;
- Insufficient work available during the periods the employee proposes to work; or
- The proposal does not fit in with planned structural changes.

If the risk assessment highlights any cause for concern, the HOR should seek advice from the Health & Safety Officer. If access to the Council's server is required, the Facilities Manager (FM) will be notified so that they can issue guidance notes on how to log in from home.

Home working arrangements will be reviewed on an annual basis, or sooner if circumstances change.

The process must be undertaken within 3 months, but can be extended by mutual agreement. Regardless of whether an application is approved or not, a further application cannot be made within 12 months.

Right of Appeal

An employee has the right of appeal against HOR's decision and this should be made to the Town Clerk. A meeting should take place to discuss a refusal to grant a request. It is important that this is dealt with in a timely manner as the law requires the consideration process to be completed within three months of first receiving the request, including any appeal.

Review

The HOR and the appropriate Manager will undertake a review after 6 months. This is to ensure that the change in work pattern is working effectively and that there is no adverse impact on either the work of the Council or the efficient working of the team. If there appears to be a problem, the individual will be consulted before a decision is made to vary the working pattern further or revert to the original working arrangement.

At the end of the review, the HOR will confirm in writing whether or not the working pattern may continue. If it may not continue, a minimum of two months' notice will be given that the working pattern cannot be accommodated and will end on a specified date.

All flexible working will be reviewed periodically by management to ensure that the needs of the Council continue to be met.

Home Working

Definition

Occasional home working is when an employee undertakes some of their duties from home on an ad hoc basis. This is usually planned in advance and may be for complete or part days.

Part time working from home is when an employee has been approved to split their weekly contracted hours by working some days in the office and some days from home. These days will be approved in advance and HR will ensure the shared calendar displays such arrangements.

Examples of the type of work considered suitable for home working include report writing, preparations for meetings, project work etc. The holding of meetings at home is not permitted due to public liability insurance.

Working from home enables work to be carried out more efficiently in a quiet location and without disruption. It may also prove a more efficient use of time if employees who have been away from their work base for part of day and are closer to their home on their return journey, complete the working day at home rather than at their normal place of work.

In cases where recovering from an illness or surgery, and an employee has been signed as Fit for Work, the Council may agree that an employee can work from home for a short specified period. This may include agreeing to home working for a fixed period e.g. two weeks, as well as shorter ad hoc periods. Managers and employees should be aware of the potential impact home working could have on teams e.g. isolation from the team, and/or Council activities, a reduction in effective managerial support or supervision.

In cases where the Town Clerk requests a period of home working, the Leader will consider the request.

In cases where a HOS requests a period of home working, the Town Clerk will consider the request.

Due to the nature of individual tasks, some roles within the Council are not deemed suitable for home working, and it is advised you consult with your Manager prior to making any application.

Rules

- Home working arrangements should work for both the Council and the employee.
- Wherever possible, requests for home working should be made at least one month before the employee wishes to start the arrangement.
- Risk assessments of the home working environment, in line with legal requirements, must be undertaken. An application and self-assessment form (Appendix 1) must be completed by the employee and agreed by the HOR before home working can commence.
- Requests should be considered on their own merits, taking into account resources, impact on colleagues and working relationships.
- When working from home employees are responsible for ensuring they are contactable during normal working hours. This must be via a Council mobile telephone (where provided) or the employee's home or mobile telephone numbers. Details of personal telephone numbers will remain confidential within the Council; messages will be taken and forwarded on.
- As a general rule it is not considered necessary for those working from home to require supplies of stationery etc. Printing and collating of documents should be carried out on Town Council premises.
- Under no circumstances should home working be used as an alternative method of meeting carer responsibilities.
- Home working agreements will be reviewed in light of any change of circumstances, whether relating to employee, work they are required to undertake, or the working environment.

Responsibilities

Employer Responsibilities

Health & Safety - In line with the Health & Safety at Work Act 1974 ("the Act") and its Health & Safety Policy, the Council will ensure, as far as reasonably practical, the health, safety and welfare at work of all employees, including those working from home. The Council reserves the right to inspect home working premises in order to ensure that the Act, current risk assessments and Council policies and procedures are being adhered to. Reasonable notice will be given to employees before any inspection.

Insurance - The Council accepts liability for accidents which are proven to have been caused by the authorised use of equipment provided by them in line with any instructions issued.

Data Protection, Security & Confidentiality - Council employees will be instructed that in instances where their colleagues are working from home they will not disclose any personal details e.g. telephone numbers to anyone outside of the Council.

Employee Responsibilities

Health & Safety - Employees are expected to carry out their work in such a way as to ensure, as far as reasonably practical, that there is no risk to health and safety to themselves, members of their family or visitors.

Insurance - Home working may have an effect on domestic insurance policies. Employees wishing to work from home must inform their insurance company of the change in circumstances and the use, and identity, of equipment owned by the Council. An employee's mortgage provider may need to be informed. Employees living in council or privately rented accommodation should notify their landlord and/or examine the terms of their lease. Any equipment belonging to the employee but being used for Council business should be operated in line with any instructions issued. It is reasonable for the Council to assume that this done.

Accidents, Incidents & Dangerous Occurrences - In line with the Council's Accident Reporting Procedure, employees must inform their line manager of any accidents, incidents or dangerous occurrences which take place whilst working at home. The initial report should be via telephone with the appropriate paperwork being completed on the employee's return to the workplace.

Policies and Procedures - All work carried out on Council business is covered by the requirements of the Council's policies and procedures, even if this work is undertaken at home.

Data Protection, Security & Confidentiality - Arrangements for home working should ensure that the employee can maintain the security and confidentiality of documents within the home environment whilst complying with Data Protection legislation and the Council’s Email, Internet and Computer Use Policy & Procedure (employees should be aware that even when using their personal equipment to undertake Council business they must comply with this procedure).

Remote Access - Employees who wish to work from home can connect to the same server session as experienced within the office. Your Line Manager needs to provide permission for you to have this access; Line Managers will then instruct HR and the Facilities Manager to provide documentation and instructions on how to get access. Access to the TTC contacts database and server information should be limited and employees must not divulge any information held on the database to any third party. If you are using a shared family PC employees should ensure that other family members don’t have access to the councils remote sessions. The easiest way to do this is to ensure your home PC has unique login credentials for each family member, or at least does not have access to the employees own profile. All Data Protection, security and confidentiality rulings must be adhered to. An application to provide one of the council’s laptops can be made to the line manager should the equipment at home not be suitable or available to the employee. Further details regarding these can be provided by the Facilities Manager and should be discussed with your line manager.

Council Tax - If the area of the house being used for home working is also used by the rest of the family at other times there are no implications regarding Council Tax. However, if the area is used solely for business and is not available to the family there may need to be a change of definition. In such cases the employee should check the details with the Billing Authority.

Taxation - Employees choosing to work from home may be entitled to claim tax relief and should contact HMRC to claim directly.

Equipment - Equipment required for occasional home working will depend on the nature of the work being undertaken. For IT based work the use of the employee’s personal equipment is likely to provide the best solution. If any equipment owned by the Council is subsequently lost or damaged by an employee that employee shall be expected to pay for its replacement.
